Lecturers Receive Applause From Persons Attending Food Institute

Despite inclement weather, another large crowd moved into Memorial Hall Wednesday afternoon for the second day's program of the 1941 Daily Herald Cooking School, and was thrilled by an outstanding demonstration of modern cooking enlivened by sparkling entertainment in a presentation entitled "Under the Big Top."

Miss Esther Roehm, food lecturer, was at her best in a series of demonstrations involving every phase of meal preparation, but particularly stressing oven cooking. Miss Dorothy Duncan, assistant food lecturer, took a prominent part in the day's proceedings, preparing several delicious dishes herself. C. J. Mortley, food institute manager continued to supply some of the amusing dramatics as well as entering into the actual cooking demonstration himself. All in all, it was one of the finest programs of its kind ever presented here.

Willkie Starts Journey

GOP Leader In Air On Way To Visit British Isles

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Carrying a borrowed trench helmet and a letter from President Roosevelt to Prime Minister Churchill, Wendell L. Willkie departed for bomb-swept England today aboard the Yankee Clipper at 8:30 a. m.

Mrs. Willkie hugged the big, shaggy-haired Republican presidential nominee of 1940 and kissed him on the right cheek just before he ducked inside the plane at LaGuardia Field and waved to him as the great ship soared aloft and was lost in the clouds over the Atlantic.

Someone recalled to her that he had had some newspapers and a book he had wanted to read and she cried in dismay.

"Oh, he forgot the book," Willkie, who endorsed the lend-lease bill for aid to Britain, was forthright in his statement directly before departure. Before about 300 persons who crowded the balcony at LaGuardia Field, he said: "I am going to England for a

Foe Of New Deal Discloses Resignation From High Court Position

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—Associate Justice James Clark McReynolds, one of the few justices remaining who was on the United States Supreme Court when President Roosevelt launched his historic fight on the judiciary, today advised the White House that he intends to retire February 1.

The 78-year-old justice, who has served since 1914, gave notice in a short, formal note to the President that he desired to take advantage of the 1937 law permitting justices to retire at 70 with full pay ($20,000 a year) for the remainder of their lives.

He has been opposed to most New Deal legislation. The announcement immediately raised speculation over his possible successor, Attorney-General Robert H. Jackson being the most prominent mentioned as likely to be named by Mr. Roosevelt to fill the vacancy.

DEMOCRAT WINS IN CONTEST FOR POST IN HOUSE

COLUMBUS, Jan. 22—Seating of Louis N. Laderman, Toledo Democrat, over J. Willard Farnsworth, Toledo Republican, as a member of the House of Representatives from Lucas County, was recommended today by a special investigating committee, according to Rep. Harold W. Houston (R-Champaign), chairman of the group.

"This has been an impartial investigation from the beginning," Houston, who also is majority floor leader, said. "Our recount shows that Laderman won by 16 votes. Therefore the committee will recommend that Laderman be seated."

The committee is comprised of four Republican and three Democratic members of the House. Rep. Harold Mason (D-Wyandot), minority floor leader, is secretary of the committee.

With the disposition of the Lucas County contest, the committee next will turn its attention to an election contest in Scioto County between Rep. Orin Graves, Portsmouth, Republican, and Miss Gladys Davis, New Boston, Democrat.

MILITARY RULE ENDS FIGHTING IN BALKAN CITY

Antonescu Invokes Strong Dictatorship To Halt Romanian Strife

SIMA GOES TO BERLIN

Iron Guardists Removed From Their Positions In Government

BUDAPEST, Jan. 22—Premier Ion Antonescu apparently succeeded today in establishing an iron-clad military dictatorship over most of Romania.

Latest reports received in Budapest indicated that most of the bloody clashes and Iron Guardists riots that swept Romania had been halted.

Early this morning Romanian troops occupied the Bucharest radio station, arresting defiant Iron Guardists who had seized the building after a series of violent assaults.

Last night, it was revealed, Romanian Vice Premier Horia Sima, leader of the Iron Guards, flew to Berlin to "receive instructions from the German government." The Germans were represented as "disappointed" by this new outbreak of Iron Guard anarchy.

Antonescu appeared to be gaining the upper hand in restoring order after battles raged in Bucharest and provincial cities, resulting in heavy casualties.

Tuesday's Clash Bitter

Yesterday there was a long pitched fight in Bucharest between Romanian troops and hundreds of "dissident" Iron Guardists.

Scores were injured and two Iron Guard rebels killed in the Bucharest battle, during which machine guns and at least two tanks were brought into action.

In the provinces Communists were reported involved in the fighting, which grew out of the murder of Major Doehring, German general staff officer, on Monday. Doehring was slain by a naturalized Greek.

49 DESTROYERS NOW IN SERVICE, KNOX DISCLOSES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—Forty-nine of the fifty destroyers which this country traded to Great Britain have now crossed the Atlantic for combat service in the war zone. Secretary of the Navy Knox said today.

Knox, at his press conference, branded as "absolutely untrue" reports that fifteen of the vessels had been held up at Halifax because of lack of trained British crews.

"All but one of the ships have gone across now," the secretary said. "One was held up temporarily by a minor collision in Canadian waters and even that one may have sailed by now."

Asked to comment on reports that Britain is now asking for naval cruisers from the United States, Knox declared:

"That is untrue. So far as I know she is not asking for any ships."

SUSPECT'S WALKING ALL RIGHT, BUT TOO STRONG

DENVER, Jan. 22—W. J. Schnabel, 30, had no trouble walking a straight line when Denver police submitted him to a sobriety test—but just the same he was locked up today on a drunkenness charge.

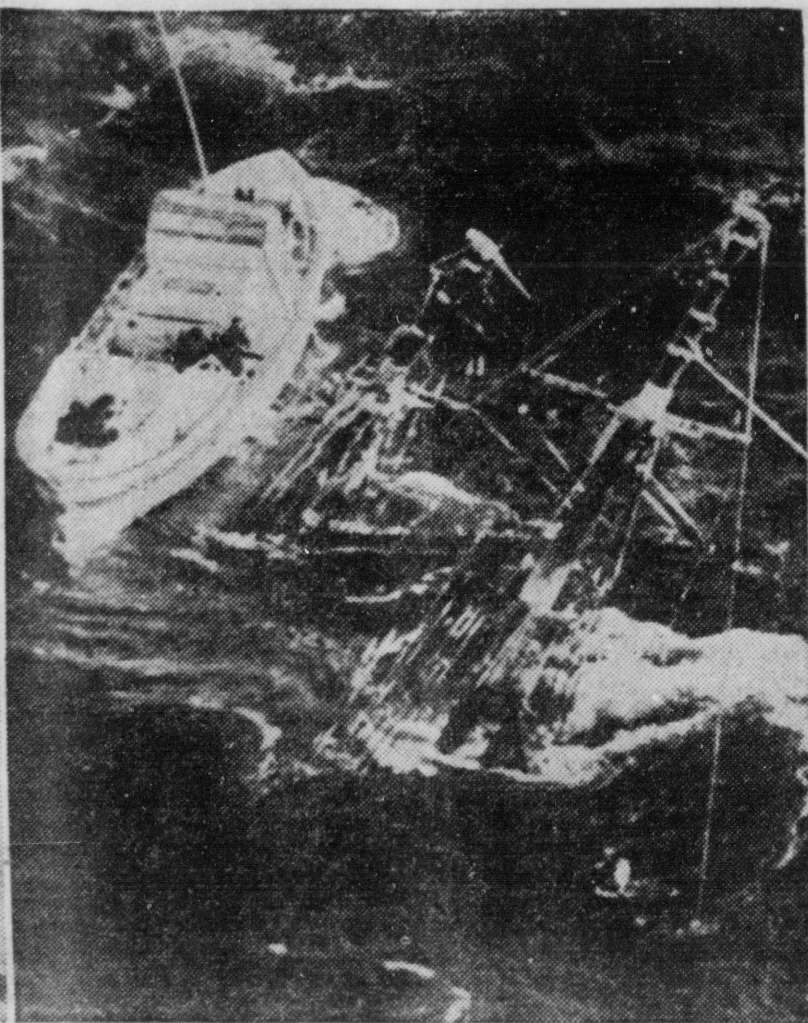

Schnabel followed the line painted on the floor of police headquarters without faltering but he left his sobriety up to question, police said, when he continued walking right through a closed glass door.

'Dads' Vote Money Bill; Reid Dissents, Claiming Police Efficiency Cut

STRIKE AT RYAN PLANE FACTORY HALTED BY U. S.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 22—A threatened strike at the Ryan Aeronautical Plant in San Diego was averted early today, according to an announcement by Harry C. Malcolm, Federal Labor Department conciliator.

Malcolm's announcement came only a few hours before the strike, called by the CIO United Auto Workers Union, was to have gone into effect.

Terms of the settlement, reached at an all night parley between CIO and company negotiators, were not disclosed.

Last evening Richard T. Frankenstein, chief negotiator for the union, had announced that unless an agreement was reached at the session the strike would start at 7 a. m. today.

The plant is engaged in production of military training planes for the war department and employs approximately 1600 men.

The union had demanded a wage increase from 50 cents to 75 cents an hour as the minimum basic rate, but whether this increase was granted could not be immediately learned. It was learned, however, that the wage issue had been settled and that a vacation clause in the contract had been holding up the negotiations.

KNOX DECLARES FLAG GRABBERS 'SCREW BALLS'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—The two young sailors who ripped a Nazi flag from the German consulate in San Francisco were described as "screwballs" by Navy Secretary Knox today.

Knox said that the men—Harold Sturtevant, 19, and E. C. Lackey, 20,—are "under observation" by the navy to determine what, if any, military steps may be taken against them.

They were found guilty of malicious mischief by a San Francisco municipal court and are to be sentenced under civil law tomorrow. "Our investigation discloses that they were screwballs," Knox told his press conference. "They were under observation before the event and now are back under observation."

$12,000 Taken Off General Fund; Disposal Plant Workers Must Wait

City Council's appropriation ordinance, slashing more than $12,000 from its general fund appropriation, was passed Tuesday night by a vote of four to one.

The dissenting vote was cast by Fourth Ward Councilman W. M. Reid, who told other members of Council that he was not in favor of reducing the efficiency of the police department. The police department has taken a cut of $2,620 in its operation costs, $300 in its fuel, light and supplies fund, the councilman pointed out, and will be forced to drop one man from its present payroll. The cut also makes it impossible to hire a patrolman to replace Fred Fitzpatrick, who retires on disability pension February 1, making the police force smaller by two.

Councilmen who voted for the appropriation ordinance were Clarence Helvering, B. H. Gordon, J. D. Mason and J. H. Helvering. Councilmen Frank Lynch and G. G. Groom were absent from the meeting.

Total appropriations will approximate $99,300 with slightly over $50,000 drawn from the general fund. Estimated revenue in the 1941 general fund will be $52,000. City Auditor Lillian Young has informed councilmen.

The appropriation ordinance was passed at a two hour discussion over disposal plant appropriations. An appropriation for a $10-a-month salary increase for employees at the sewage disposal plant was dropped from the ordinance before the final vote. Councilman assured disposal plant employees the raise would come later.

City police and firemen, who have gone unpaid since the first of the year received their pay checks Wednesday following passage of the ordinance.

RED CROSS AIDS VICTIMS OF 102 DISASTERS IN '40

CHICAGO, Jan. 22—The American Red Cross spent $637,928 for the aid of victims of 102 disasters throughout the United States in the fiscal year ended July 1, 1940, it was announced in Chicago today. Among the disasters listed were fires, mine explosions, a school bus accident, a railroad wreck and an earthquake.

RESCUERS SAVE 14 MINERS; FOUR ARE FEARED LOST

KIMBALL, W. Va., Jan. 22—Four miners were reported trapped and possibly dead today in the Carswell mine of the Koppers Coal Company following an unexplained explosion which severely burned most of the 14 other men rescued from the shaft.

Company spokesmen said that rescue workers hoped to reach the four men still in the blast-swept mine soon.

Eighteen men were at work in the mine when the blast occurred, according to officials at the scene. Fourteen were brought to the surface, most of them suffering burns, some of which were serious.

No indication was given as to the cause of the explosion. N. P. Rhinehart, inspection chief of the West Virginia State Mines Department, ordered inspectors to the scene and left Charleston for the mine several hours after word of the blast was received there.

MONROE SCHOOL DELAYS DATE FOR REOPENING

With the influenza epidemic believed to be subsiding in the county, Byron Stoeer, Monroe Township superintendent, said his school would not be reopened until Monday. Previous plans were to open Thursday.

Mr. Stoeer said the Monroe-Washington basketball game scheduled Friday night would be postponed.

SOCIALIST ATTACKS LEND-LEASE ACTION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—Socialist Leader Norman Thomas, testifying before the House Foreign Affairs Committee today, denounced the lend-lease British aid measure as "a bill to authorize undeclared war in the name of peace, and dictatorship in the name of defending democracy."

Thomas declared that the measure is so broad that if it were passed, President Roosevelt could deliver the American fleet to England, ignore the Johnson Act and Neutrality Law and scrap all labor laws.

Thomas, tall, gray haired and emphatic, declared that the "all out" British aid measure gives Mr. Roosevelt more power than President Woodrow Wilson during the World War.

Bill Not Essential

Asserting that the bill is not essential to "reasonable aid" to England he asked why Mr. Roosevelt wants it enacted and then answered:

VICHY PREDICTS MORE PRESSURE BY CONQUERORS

Major Military Move Near, French Government Hints; Tripoli Endangered

GENERAL TO BE OPPOSED

Berlin Gravely Concerned Over Italy's Failure To Gain Victories

VICHY, France, Jan. 22—German plans a major military move possibly involving French forces in Tunis and Algeria to prevent the vital Italian African port of Tripoli from falling into the hands of swiftly advancing British troops, it was reported in Vichy today.

With the fall of Tobruk, Tripoli now is held to be threatened from both the east and south. Diplomatic circles are keeping a close watch on German forces based in Sicily, just across the channel from Tunis.

The recent meeting of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini, according to the view in Vichy, was staged to prepare a major counter-stroke to the British advances in North Africa.

This move, in all probability, will be associated with new demands on France.

(Editor's Note: While Vichy did not amplify this angle, it was assumed that such demands would be concerned with the French troops stationed in Tunis, Algeria and French Morocco under command of General Maxime Weygand. If the German high command (Continued on Page Eight)

BRITISH DAMAGE ELBASAN; DUCE'S PLANES IN RAID

ATHENS, Jan. 22—A terrific British air attack on Italy's Albanian stronghold of Elbasan, where military buildings and railway facilities were blasted by bombs, was announced in Athens today.

A Royal Air Force communique said:

"Military objectives at Elbasan were attacked by bomber aircraft yesterday. High explosives and incendiaries fell inside the target area. Military buildings and a railway line were hit, while violent explosions were observed near the latter."

"Anti-aircraft fire was encountered and enemy fighters were active, but all our aircraft returned safely."

Earlier, as the Greek high command claimed new successes on the Albanian front, Fascist air raids on the Greek port of Salonika and the towns of Volo and Preveza were announced.

Rome Admits East Defense Broken By Foes

LONDON, Jan. 22—Virtual confirmation that the vital Libyan port of Tobruk has fallen to British "blitz" troops in North Africa was given to the House of Commons by Prime Minister Winston Churchill today. "It may well be that while I am speaking," the prime minister said, "Tobruk and its garrison are in our hands."

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 22—The Australian army headquarters in Libya advised the government today that the Italian stronghold of Tobruk has fallen before the Anglo-Australian onslaught. Army Minister Spender, who announced Tobruk's fall, declared Australian troops were engaged in the final operations leading up to its occupation.

ROME, Jan. 22—Enemy forces penetrated the main eastern defenses of Tobruk, Italian Libyan stronghold, after a night-long naval bombardment, the Italian high command announced today.

The British attack was carried out by three Australian divisions, two artillery regiments, two armored divisions, and one French motorized formation made up of followers of General Charles De Gaulle.

CAIRO, Jan. 22—British and Australian shock troops were reported "mopping up" Italian forces in the Tobruk area today after smashing into the Libyan stronghold's defenses to a depth of five miles.

PUMPKIN SHOW SOCIETY ELIMINATES FREE ACTS, TAKES OTHER ACTION

STRESS WILL BE PUT ON JUNIORS IN NEXT EVENT

Local Talent, Shows, Contests To Be Sponsored To Aid Fall Festival

BUDGET TO BE PROVIDED

Directors Elect W. B. Cady To Serve As President For Another Year

Carrying out their promise to make "drastic changes" in Circleville's 1941 Pumpkin Show, directors of the Show Tuesday night voted to reduce premiums on all but juvenile entries, promote a midway, set up departmental budgets and eliminate free attractions.

Directors admitted that many of the changes would be unorthodox, but believed their actions would be supported by all who maintained last year that the event was "the same old show."

A definite effort will be made to centralize exhibits and midway attractions, shifting Junior fair and 4-H club exhibits into a more advantageous location, perhaps in the down-town section.

Free acts will be eliminated entirely, directors decided, with local talent, shows and contests promoted in their place. Directors believed the lack of interest shown in the free attractions at the 1940 show warranted their removal from next fall's event.

In all entries except those made by Junior groups, cash awards will be offered only for first and second places, with ribbons for third and fourth positions. Such a move will cut premium list expenses by more than $300, directors believe.

William B. Cady, president of the Agricultural Society, appointed Robert Brehmer, W. C. Kochheiser and Joseph Burns as a committee to check 1940 entry books and suggest means of cutting expenses by eliminating those exhibits which did not "pay" last year.

Two On Budget Unit
Robert Colville and Herman Hill were appointed by the president to act as a budget committee which will meet with each director and set up a budget for each department of the show.

With so many changes being planned for the 1941 show, directors decided to meet the first Tuesday of each month. Their next meeting will be held February 4.

No change was made in the organization of the Agricultural Society, all officers being reelected and directors assigned to the same departments they had last year.

Officers are William B. Cady, president; T. D. Krinn, vice-president; R. G. Colville, treasurer; and Mack Parrett, secretary. Other directors are R. L. Brehmer, Herman Hill, W. C. Kochheiser, G. D. McDowell, Blenn R. Bales, Dan McClain, Forrest Short, Joseph Burns, Fred E. Moeller, Arthur Johnson, and Karl Herrmann.

BOSWELL LYRICS

One of those things Connie Boswell never talks about is her ability at song-writing but she's done more than a little in her time. In fact, she's written special lyrics for "frenes" and will sing the song duet-fashion with Bing Crosby in the Music Hall Thursday.

Bingston, as Connie calls him, has invited quite a diversified lineup of talent around to the Hall this week. James Hilton, the eminent author; Edward Everett Horton, comedian of complete confusion; and that able golfer Jimmy Demaret will take up various matters with the NBC red network microphone at 9:00 p. m.

This is a quick-repeat appearance for James Hilton who was on the show just three Thursday back. At that time he read a prophecy of the future he'd written which caused a heavy influx of fan-mail asking for copies.

It's a toss-up whether Bing will sing "Rancho Grande" or "Daisy Bell" but it's certain he'll give his treatment to "Georgia On My Mind," "Round Up Time in Texas," "Brahm's Lullaby," and for his memory tune, the first Hawaiian.

The victims were Robert Clouse, Earl Emmet, both 6. Earl's three-year-old brother, Dop, Jr., was saved by artificial respiration.

The three boys, together with Wilbur Emmet, 4, another brother of Earl, were playing on the pond, about 15 feet deep, which was frozen over. When the boys got too near a culvert the ice cracked and three of them crashed through into the water.

Wilbur Emmet, however, escaped and ran for help. Edward Middaugh, a garage mechanic, pulled Don and Earl Emmet to the bank and revived Don but efforts to revive Earl were futile. The Clouse boy's body was not found until about an hour later.

Shirley takes the part of Star Bright, a little girl orphaned by a storm at sea in "Captain January." A bluff old lighthouse keeper named Captain January brings her up to love the sea and the men who make their living aboard ship.

STATE BUREAU SIMILAR TO FBI ASKED IN BILL

Hocking County Official Submits Measure To Legislature

TO SELECT DIRECTOR

Many Other Statutes, One
By William Radcliff, Goes Into Hopper

COLUMBUS, Jan. 22—Ammunition for a two-fronted blow against crime in Ohio was provided today in two bills submitted for consideration to the 94th General Assembly, in session for the third consecutive week.

Included in the total of 126 presented in the Senate and House, the measures would create a State Bureau of Investigation, similar to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and a state-wide teletype system linking state highway patrol stations and city police departments.

Action on all submitted measures was expected to lag until next Monday, when it was predicted committees would begin to grind out bills they deemed worthy of passage. The Senate was to adjourn this afternoon and the House was expected to follow suit tonight or tomorrow.

Presented by Rep. Brehm (R-Hocking), the SBI bill would authorize creation of a bureau of 50 men and appointment of a director by the governor at a salary of $4000 per year. Investigators would have to be attorneys or graduate accountants.

To Carry Arms

As in the cases of FBI men, investigators would be permitted to carry firearms. They would be invested with the authority of state-wide peace officers for the purpose of enforcing Ohio laws.

Upon request, they would assist local officials in solving crimes.

The second measure, presented by Rep. Caryl (R-Union), would spread a web of teletype machines across the state for the prompt collection and distribution of police information.

Radiating from the State Highway patrol headquarters in Columbus, the system would spread to the bureau of motor vehicles,
the Columbus police department,
the London Prison farm's criminal identification bureau, and state highway district headquarters at Findlay, Massillon, Cambridge and Wilmington.

Secondary strings from district headquarters would spread out in the following manner:

Massillon: to police at Mansfield, Canton, Youngstown, Akron and Cleveland.

Findlay: to police at Marion,
Lima, Toledo, Fremont, Sandusky, and the Ohio-Michigan state line
at Wayne County, Mich.

Wilmington: to police at Cincinnati, Dayton, Springfield.

Cambridge: to police at Newark,
Zanesville and Steubenville.

Proposals to regulate further the lives of private citizens also were in the latest flood of bills.
They included:

Reps. Moulton (D-Crawford)
and Simpson (R-Hardin) to create a state nurses' board of five members to "regulate the practice of professional nursing in Ohio."

Labor Board Urged

Rept. Deutsch (D-Montgomery), to provide for an advisory labor board to confer with the governor whenever a request is made for National Guard assistance in a labor dispute. The board would consist of one representative each from the two major labor unions, one representative of industry and one professor of economics.

Rep. Zona (D-Cuyahoga), to create a state board of photographic examiners and to regulate and license professional photographers.

Meanwhile, Rep. Radcliff (R-Pickaway) attacked all regulatory measures and contended that many of them should be repealed.
To add weight to his contention,
he introduced a measure to abolish the State Barber Board. He asserted the board served "no definite purpose."

sociation and its affiliated organizations in 88 counties went on

U. S. Navy Gets Fastest Plane

THE United States navy has acquired what aviation experts say is the fastest fighting plane in the world, the Vought-Sikorsky XF4U-1, shown in flight, above, near Washington. It is believed the world's fastest plane, capable of flying more than 400 miles an hour. The ship has an air-cooled motor and a peculiar wing design which is said to reduce drag on the plane by nearly 50 percent.

record as favoring a bill introduced by Rep. Margaret Mahoney (D-Cuyahoga) to provide medical care for low-income families on a monthly "subscription" basis.

Form Corporations

The measure would authorize organization of corporations which would contract to provide adequate medical care for any individual upon payment of a specified monthly fee. The plan is similar to that now used for hospitalization service.

Other bills introduced in the House and Senate included:

Sen. Zoul (D-Cleveland), remove sales tax from liquor purchased by the drink and place same on liquor purchased in bulk.

Sen. Connolly (D-Lucas), permit men drafted for military service to retain their rights under the public employees retirement system.

Sen. Connolly (D-Lucas), place employees of local health boards
under civil service.

Reps. Mahoney-Babka (D-Cuyahoga) provide fine of $50 to $200 for anyone who poisons a dog or cat or places poison where they may find it.

Rep. Kirkpatrick (R-Knox) To assess real property at its true value and abolish the right of a county auditor to defer reappraisalment.

Reps. Cramer-Miller (R-D-Lucas) Authorize municipalities to use up to 10 percent of their auto license revenues to pay salaries of traffic policemen.

Rep. Yoder (R-Medina) To classify tourist camps as hotels.

Rep. Evans (R-Portage) to permit shooting of commercially raised and branded game birds or animals at field trials at any time of year.

Rep. Davenport (R-Ross) Repeal statute that place absolute liability on owner or harbinger of a dog for any damage done by the animal.

Rep. Hudlett (D-Cuyahoga) Provide a lethal gas chamber in lieu of the electric chair for executions at the Ohio State penitentiary.

Rep. Hudlett (D-Cuyahoga)
Abolish retail sales tax on medi-

U. S. TO PERMIT SALES TO SOVIET

"Moral" Embargo Against Russia To Be Lifted;
'Weaning' Hinted

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—With removal of the "moral embargo" on the shipment of aircraft and other war supplies to Russia, the United States government today sought to wean the Soviet Union away from the axis powers.

In one of the most important diplomatic moves made by this government since the outbreak of the European war, the State Department today notified American manufacturers and exporters that the "moral embargo" imposed on the shipment of war supplies to Soviet Russia at the time of the invasion of Finland in 1939 has been revoked.

Henceforth, American manufacturers are "morally" free to sell to Russia anything they want,
providing they can get a government export license for the proposed shipments. Thus, in the case of the Soviet, the export license becomes a formidable diplomatic weapon in the hands of this government.

The licenses will be granted in proportion to the good behavior and friendliness of Russia. If Moscow shuns full-fledged membership in the axis and helps to hold Germany in check in the Balkans, the government will be liberal in the granting of export licenses it was said. However should Moscow give too much support or encouragement to Germany, Japan or any other member of the axis, the American government will quickly decide that the purchases Russia may wish to make in this country would be in conflict with American defense

COOLER WEATHER HALTS EPIDEMIC THROUGH OHIO

COLUMBUS, Jan. 22—The influenza epidemic in Ohio has apparently been checked by the colder weather, State Health Director R. H. Markwith said today.
He said the disease was subsiding in most sections of the state.

However, a few schools continued to close as the flu sent pupils home. Schools at Cadiz and Waynesville, near Lebanon, were ordered shutdown yesterday because of the epidemic.

Interests and therefore the export licenses could not be granted.

submit a report of it to the mayor.
Testimony of all witnesses was being withheld until the probe was completed.

A WRONG TO BE RIGHTED

THERE is just enough truth in some of Hitler's talking points to make them plausible to persons who do not think them through. One of these he has used for more than one purpose. He has justified his persecution of the Jews on the basis of American "persecution" of the Negro. And he asserted that democracy was false and hypocritical because of a racial problem in this country.

Americans have usually answered indignantly that race persecution in Germany was a studied, governmental policy. In this country it was the policy of a few groups or individuals, condemned by the government and by leading citizens of North and South. They have added that mistreatment of the Negro was diminishing, that much health and general welfare work was directed toward Negro betterment, and so on.

Thoughtful observers confess that such protestations tell only part of the story. In this matter the ideal goal is still very far in advance of practical developments. Lately, however, one reads and hears on every hand protests against racial discrimination in defense jobs and in the defense forces.

Not only are Negro leaders protesting, but many leaders not of that race are raising the issue more earnestly than ever before. Here, they say, is a point at which the armor of democracy is vulnerable. Here is a matter in which we can not only vindicate our profession of democracy, but can at the same time undermine some of Hitler's most malicious propaganda.

WHAT! NO CAVIAR?

CITIZENS of this country may soon be deprived of imported caviar and pistachio nuts. Some foreign cheeses and wines are already becoming scarce to the point of disappearance from dealers' shelves. Currants from Greece will soon be gone, and no more are arriving. War is uncomfortable indeed.

The voices of complainers about such deprivations do not make a pleasant sound among self-respecting persons. Consider—in the light of what the people of the British Isles and of Europe and China are now going without—a list of the foods available on a recent northern city in this country. There were fresh strawberries from the South, rhubarb from hothouses, cranberries, avocados, bananas, the citrus fruits, fresh vegetables of many kinds, dried, canned and quick-frozen fruits, domestic cheeses of the same types formerly

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

TWO URGE WILLKIE

WASHINGTON—Wendell Willkie's decision to go to London to gather first-hand information to support the lend-lease armament bill brought him a grateful bow from the White House, but it cost him a hot verbal battle with one of the most potent press backers of his presidential candidacy.

Roy Howard, of the Scripps-Howard group of newspapers and an ardent "negotiated peace" advocate, spent the better part of one night trying to persuade Willkie to drop the trip plan.

Back-stopping Howard in his arguments was Bruce Barton, former New York Congressman and defeated GOP aspirant for the seat of New Dealer Senator Jim Mead. Like Howard, Barton was one of Willkie's earliest and staunchest boosters and played a leading role in putting him over at Philadelphia.

Howard and Barton strove mightily in their effort to win Willkie over to their views. But the former GOP standard-bearer stood firmly by his guns.

He contended that aiding Britain to beat back the Axis aggressors was crucial to U. S. security; that he had always advocated this and did not propose to change his position. Also, that while he didn't pretend to be a friend of Roosevelt, Roosevelt was elected and if he was to function as President he had to have authority to do so. He (Willkie) would have demanded this had he been elected, so he was not going to permit personal feeling or partisanship to prevent him from urging such a policy for his successful rival.

NOTE—Several days after this incident, General Hugh Johnson, Scripps-Howard columnist, scathingly assailed Willkie.

WILLKIE OR SMITH

This undercover battle occurred several days after another in which Willkie was the innocent bystander.

The scrap took place within the high command of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies and was over the issue of electing him successor to William Allen White.

A group of Midwestern and New England board members came within a hair's breadth of doing this after Al Smith had turned them down. The Man with the Brown Derby was their first choice, but shook his head when asked whether he would accept.

The group then proposed Willkie, although they had not asked him and hadn't the slightest notion what he would do if offered the post. A count of noses showed that they had the votes to put over their spectacular plan, but at the last moment they were blocked by a Willkieite.

Lewis Douglas, co-chairman of the Democrats for Willkie and a fighting advocate of "all-out" aid to Britain, took the

Bland Diet Effective in Colitis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● Dr. Axel Munthe in "The Story of San Michele," one of the popular "doctor books" of a few years ago, ridiculed the term "colitis" but it has persisted in spite of his attack and his anecdotes.

The purist, the scientific doctor, recognizes colitis, of course, as an actual inflammation of the large bowel, the colon, which is caused by definite germs or animal parasites. Then there is a peculiar condition which we agree to call "mucous colitis," about which little is understood.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Besides these, there are innumerable patients who have been told they have colitis or have applied the designation to themselves. What their condition is would be more accurately described as spastic irritable bowel. There are no organic changes in the colon, no actual germs have invaded it, but it is sore—and irritable, and this condition is by far the most common cause of abdominal discomfort and pain. The underlying cause is probably some defect in the sympathetic nerve mechanism, which controls the involuntary tonus of the muscular coat of the large intestine.

Feeling of Tenseness

These patients are more or less continuously conscious of a feeling of tenseness in the abdomen. It is not so much pain as discomfort—tenseness is the best word because it has a basis in the physiology of the condition—the muscles of the intestine are indeed tense, and especially irritable. The subjects feel as if this were due to something inside the bowel and they are constantly trying to get rid of it, so they become chronic cathartic users, and enema takers, and they have colonic flushings—all of which make the condition worse.

They also go on strange diets, and eliminate one thing after another from their diet, often resulting in semi-starvation. They are the type that whole wheat bread makes worse, but they do not realize this and are the very ones that go in for whole wheat bread.

It is possible to restore them to a reasonably normal state of health.

The diet of such individuals should be bland and non-irritating, somewhat like the following list:

Cream vegetable soups — tomato, pea, celery, etc.; oatmeal and rice; these should be thoroughly boiled for at least 2 hours in order to break up cellulose husks — should be served with cream and sugar; eggs — soft boiled, poached, coddled, scrambled; toast and toasted crackers; potatoes — mashed and baked; mashed peas, carrots; spinach; ice cream and ices; custards; tapioca; wine jelly; rice pudding; orange juice.

Avoid fried foods, meat of all kinds, fruit, vegetables with a heavy residue, salads, highly spiced foods and butter.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. F.: "I am 20 years of age and suffering from a slight curvature of the spine and would like to know if there is anything I can do to remedy this, or if there is any known cure for it."

Answer—About five per cent of women have a slight curvature of the spine, sufficient to be called beyond normal. In most cases it needs no treatment and will give no trouble. In others it should be treated by exercise and orthopedic appliances.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Relieving and Gaining Weight," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

MURDER MAKES A HERO

ELLIOTT FILLION

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

I THOUGHT the chief's rebuking words would silence Kaye, but they only seemed to infuriate her. If he had said to me that stern "I prefer to hear his story from his own lips," I wouldn't have dared speak again. But Kaye rushed into further angry speech.

"You can't ring Dave in on Mark's death," she cried. "Why don't you question the rest of them? Cary had a fight with Mark tonight. We heard them!"

I had not dreamed that to shield the man she loved, Kaye would attempt to incriminate her own cousin. Yet, looking at the matter from her point of view, I knew that I would do the same. Were Cary suspected, I would promptly tell all I knew, no matter where suspicion might fall.

"We already know about Mr. Essex's argument with your brother," replied the chief. "Who was with you when you heard it?"

"I was alone," Kaye tossed her head, defiantly.

"You were not!" roared the chief. "And I want no more lies from you. Who was with you?"

"Dave." Her voice wasn't any louder than a mouse's squeak.

"Why did you lie to me?" roared the chief as angrily as before.

"I didn't want you to know that Dave knew about it," she whimpered.

"Why?" insisted the chief. And at that Kaye seemed to realize that she had only involved herself and the man she loved in trouble she could have avoided by being frank.

"I'm sorry, Chief Crane," she said penitently. "I should have told you the truth in the beginning, but I was so scared for fear you'd think Dave did it when I know he didn't, that I said the first thing that came into my head."

"A bad thing to do, Kaye, but let's forget about it. To KNOW that David Otis didn't kill your brother, you must know who did. Who killed him?"

"I don't KNOW it that way, Chief Crane, really I don't. From Kaye's earnestness, I was sure she was speaking the truth. 'I do know Dave. He wouldn't do a thing like that. I know he wouldn't.'"

"All right, now, what did you hear in the quarrel between Mark and Cary?"

Kaye shot a side wise glance at Cary. He wasn't looking at her. His eyes were fixed on space; he seemed not to be noticing what was going on around him.

"Not very much," she admitted sheepishly. "Dave and I were just going out when Cary and Nancy came downstairs. When we came back—we went down to the stable to look at my horse; he was a little lame yesterday—Cary and Mark were fighting about some papers he'd found in his father's chest. I heard Cary say he'd seen Horace Rand, and Mark said he ought to be willing to marry Irene or do anything else to be certain that story—I don't know what he meant by that—was buried forever.

"They, Cary and Mark, were friendly enough at dinner time," she added honestly. "Then, about a quarter after nine, I went into the library to ask Nancy if she'd go down to the fishing village with me tomorrow morning, and Mark started telling me I couldn't marry Dave."

It didn't seem to me that they were getting anywhere going over and over the quarrels which, when all was said, were not so terrible after all. I think Captain Lancy was of the same mind, for he suddenly turned to Cary.

"I've been thinking about that letter you received, Mr. Essex. Did you keep it? The one threatening you with death," he added, Cary seeming bewildered at being thus so brusquely recalled from his own thoughts.

"I did."

"I'd like it, please. The laboratory may be able to give us information about it."

Cary pulled out his wallet, selected the letter and passed it to the detective. From his face I thought he was glad to be rid of it.

Again a confused sound of voices came to my ears and, pompous as ever, Horace Rand, accompanied by Irene and Proctor, strutted in. If I had thought Chief Crane brutal to Kaye, I now had an opportunity to see what real police treatment was like.

The chief rose and met them at the door. Curtly he greeted them, and when Irene would have fluttered across the floor to Cary, he ordered her, into a chair on the other side of the room. He separated Rand, from his son and, returning to his seat, yapped out:

"Mr. Rand, why did you shoot Mark Gould?"

I have seen a good many deflated balloons, but that was the first time I ever saw a human being look like one. Rand's mouth dropped open, his portly form seemed to shrivel until he occupied only a fraction of the chair he had so imposingly filled. Irene uttered a shriek, and Proctor looked from his father to the chief and back again with such a nit-witish expression upon his face that, serious as was the occasion, I almost laughed aloud.

"I—I—I—" stammered Rand. For once his flow of language failed him.

"Answer me!" roared the chief. I noticed that his eyes and those of the detective were not still on going out when Cary and Nancy came downstairs. When we came back—we went down to the stable to look at my horse; he was a little lame yesterday—Cary and Mark were fighting about some papers he'd found in his father's chest. I heard Cary say he'd seen Horace Rand, and Mark said he ought to be willing to marry Irene or do

If you are the only boy in the family, don't expect every one else to wait on you. A chore or two will help you to develop a sense of responsibility and will make you much more popular in your home. Turn-about is fair play.

D.A.R. Picks Delegates
To Attend Conventions

31 Members Take Part In Event
Tuesday

Mrs. C. C. Watts, Mrs. George Hunsicker and Mrs. Lee Shaner named delegates from the Skaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, to the State meeting at the Netherlands Plaza, Cincinnati, March 9-12, during the meeting of the local chapter Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Frank J. Bennett, South Court Street. Alternates chosen included Mrs. James P. Offitt, Mrs. Helen Black Anderson, Mrs. Donald H. Watt, Mrs. William Cromley and Miss Florence Dunton.

Delegates were selected also for the National convention which will be in Washington, D. C., April 14-19, the two named being Mrs. Watts and Miss Marie L. Hamilton, with Mrs. Meeker Terrelliger, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. William Mack as alternates.

Thirty-one members attended the session, Mrs. Lowell E. Burnelle and Mrs. O. K. Rodgers of Gloucester, O., joining the group as guests.

Mrs. Watts, regent, was in the chair for the ritualistic opening of chapter and Salute to the Flag led by Mrs. Donald H. Watt.

During the business hour, a letter of thanks was read from the Circleville Benevolent Association for the Christmas contribution. The annual Guest Day Tea was announced for the February session. It was mentioned also that search is being made for a copy of "Portraits and Biographical Records of Scioto Valley", by the Lewis Publishing Co., 1894.

Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker reported a box and money ready to be sent to Ellis Island.

Mrs. Anderson presented an instructive paper on "Old Canal Days", mentioning the recent revival of interest in old canals as due to the work of conservation officers. She mentioned the fact that the old canals were passing away rapidly, two being lost in 1924, the Chesapeake and Ohio being destroyed by a heavy spring flood, the Morris, by drying up.

More than 4,400 miles of artificial waterways formerly in use, about 700 remain in operation. She discussed the building of the Ohio canal which connected Lake Erie and the Ohio River, passing through Circleville, concluding with a delightful resume of its dedication.

Mrs. Burnelle, state chairman of Children of the American Revolution, talked in the interest of the idea of such organizations as not new, the first being founded in 1819. Two chapters are being organized in Columbus, according to Mrs. Burnelle. She mentioned social activities.

Miss Clarke advised the teaching of piano before any other instrument as it teaches everything. According to Miss Clarke, "a piano is a man's instrument, which is contrary to what many people think, and it is not 'sissy' for a boy to study it." She recommended piano teaching in the public schools as an elective course. Miss Clarke illustrated at the piano several points of contrast in the old and new methods of teaching.

During the business session, plans were presented by Mrs. Virgil M. Cress for sponsoring an entertainment February 28 in the Circleville High School auditorium with Jack W. Miss Plum presented another contest in which parts of a watch were to be named.

The last number of the program was a reading by Mr. Peters in which the missing words of the rhymes were supplied by the grangers. Candy and apples were served at the close of the evening.

A WRONG TO BE RIGHTED
THERE is just enough truth in some of Hitler's talking points to make them plausible to persons who do not think them through. One of these he has used for more than one purpose. He has justified his persecution of the Jews on the basis of American "persecution" of the Negro. And he asserted that democracy was false and hypocritical because of a racial problem in this country.

Americans have usually answered indignantly that race persecution in Germany was a studied, governmental policy. In this country it was the policy of a few groups or individuals, condemned by the government and by leading citizens of North and South. They have added that mistreatment of the Negro was diminishing, that much health and general welfare work was directed toward Negro betterment, and so on.

Thoughtful observers confess that such protestations tell only part of the story. In this matter the ideal goal is still very far in advance of practical developments. Lately, however, one reads and hears on every hand protests against racial discrimination in defense jobs and in the defense forces.

Not only are Negro leaders protesting, but many leaders not of that race are raising the issue more earnestly than ever before. Here, they say, is a point at which the armor of democracy is vulnerable. Here is a matter in which we can not only vindicate our profession of democracy, but can at the same time undermine some of Hitler's most malicious propaganda.

WHAT! NO CAVIAR?
CITIZENS of this country may soon be deprived of imported caviar and pistachio nuts. Some foreign cheeses and wines are already becoming scarce to the point of disappearance from dealers' shelves. Currants from Greece will soon be gone, and no more are arriving. War is uncomfortable indeed.

The voices of complainers about such deprivations do not make a pleasant sound among self-respecting persons. Consider—in the light of what the people of the British Isles and of Europe and China are now going without—a list of the foods available on a recent northern city in this country. There were fresh strawberries from the South, rhubarb from hothouses, cranberries, avocados, bananas, the citrus fruits, fresh vegetables of many kinds, dried, canned and quick-frozen fruits, domestic cheeses of the same types formerly

WORLD AT A GLANCE

ADOPTION of Senator Millard E. Tydings' suggestion that the United States ask Britain and the Axis powers for statements of the terms upon which the respective sides would be willing to stop fighting now appears altogether unlikely.

The requests, of course, could be made only upon President Roosevelt's initiative presumably through the state department, and neither the White House nor the department show much inclination to act as the Maryland senator proposes. The president has said as much. It scarcely requires saying that they'd be rejected to the war if they could, but it's pretty evident that they stand no chance of doing it at present by way of the Tydings method.

That Herr Hitler would be willing to name his peace conditions is considered extremely likely. Indeed, he's hinted already at an inclination to do so, even unwittingly. A possibility is seen, too, that he might make an offer which the British would find more or less acceptable — provided they thought they could trust him to stick to any imaginable bargain that he'd subscribed to. While it doesn't outright say so, Washington officials are fully convinced, however, that Adolf isn't to be believed under oath. Holding his opinion of his own, it can't very well blame John Bull for holding the same one.

CHURCHILL'S CONDITION
What British Prime Minister Winston Churchill would return as an answer to a request for his country's peace conditions is clearly foreseen here. The emphatic consensus in Washington is that he'd name just a single condition—the unqualified extinction of the Fuehrer, and extinction of a sort to guarantee its everlasting permanency. Obviously that's a condition that Adolf wouldn't agree to—not even lyingly.

So what's the use in asking Britain and the Axis for mutual statements of conditions, since it's manifest in advance that no dicker can be arrived at under existing conditions?

Later, when one side or the other virtually is all in, maybe Uncle Sam's good offices will amount to something, but not now. Such is official Washington's reasoning.

In diplomatic circles there's been a bit of surmising to the effect that Lord Halifax's appointment as John Bull's ambassador in our capital hints at a British desire to have Uncle Sam do some pacificatory work. This is because his lordship was an appeaser until shortly before the war started. He hasn't been since then, though. Besides, Prime Minister Winston Churchill sent him here, and Winston certainly isn't an appeaser; it isn't conceivable that he'll stand for any "negotiated peace" activity by his embassy on Massachusetts Avenue.

Winston's recent speech, by radio, to the Italians, urging them to

TWO URGE WILLKIE
WASHINGTON—Wendell Willkie's decision to go to London to gather first-hand information to support the lend-lease armament bill brought him a grateful bow from the White House, but it cost him a hot verbal battle with one of the most potent press backers of his presidential candidacy.

Roy Howard, of the Scripps-Howard group of newspapers and an ardent "negotiated peace" advocate, spent the better part of one night trying to persuade Willkie to drop the trip plan.

Howard and Barton strove mightily in their effort to win Willkie over to their views. But the former GOP standard-bearer stood firmly by his guns.

He contended that aiding Britain to beat back the Axis aggressors was crucial to U. S. security; that he had always advocated this and did not propose to change his position. Also, that while he didn't pretend to be a friend of Roosevelt, Roosevelt was elected and if he was to function as President he had to have authority to do so. He (Willkie) would have demanded this had he been elected, so he was not going to permit personal feeling or partisanship to prevent him from urging such a policy for his successful rival.

NOTE—Several days after this incident, General Hugh Johnson, Scripps-Howard columnist, scathingly assailed Willkie.

WILLKIE OR SMITH
This undercover battle occurred several days after another in which Willkie was the innocent bystander.

The scrap took place within the high command of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies and was over the issue of electing him successor to William Allen White.

A group of Midwestern and New England board members came within a hair's breadth of doing this after Al Smith had turned them down. The Man with the Brown Derby was their first choice, but shook his head when asked whether he would accept.

The group then proposed Willkie, although they had not asked him and hadn't the slightest notion what he would do if offered the post. A count of noses showed that they had the votes to put over their spectacular plan, but at the last moment they were blocked by a Willkieite.

Lewis Douglas, co-chairman of the Democrats for Willkie and a fighting advocate of "all-out" aid to Britain, took the

DIET AND HEALTH
Bland Diet Effective in Colitis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Dr. Axel Munthe in "The Story of San Michele," one of the popular "doctor books" of a few years ago, ridiculed the term "colitis," but it has persisted in spite of his attack and his anecdotes.

The purist, the scientific doctor, recognizes colitis, of course, as an inflammation of the large bowel, the colon, which is caused by definite germs or animal parasites. Then there is a peculiar condition which we agree to call "mucous colitis," about which little is understood.

But besides these, there are innumerable patients who have been told they have colitis or have applied the designation to themselves. What their condition is would be more accurately described as spastic irritable bowel. There are no organic changes in the colon, no actual germs have invaded it, but it is sore—and irritable, and this condition is by far the most common cause of abdominal discomfort and pain. The underlying cause is probably some defect in the sympathetic nerve mechanism, which controls the involuntary tonus of the muscular coat of the large intestine.

Feeling of Tenseness
These patients are more or less continuously conscious of a feeling of tenseness in the abdomen. It is not so much pain as discomfort—tenseness is the best word because it has a basis in the physiology of the condition—the muscles of the intestine are indeed tense, and especially irritable. The subjects feel as if this were due to something inside the bowel and they are constantly trying to get rid of it, so they become chronic cathartic users, and enema takers, and they have colonic flushings—all of which make the condition worse.

They also go on strange diets, and eliminate one thing after another from their diet, often resulting in semi-starvation. They are the type that whole wheat bread makes worse, but they do not realize this and are the very ones that go in for whole wheat bread.

It is possible to restore them to a reasonably normal state of health.

The diet of such individuals should be bland and non-irritating, somewhat like the following list:

Cream vegetable soup — tomato, pea, celery, etc.; oatmeal and rice — these should be thoroughly boiled for at least 2 hours in order to break up cellulose husks — should be served with cream and sugar; eggs — soft boiled, poached, scrambled, baked; toast and toasted crackers; potatoes — mashed and baked; mashed peas, carrots; spinach; ice cream and ices; custards; tapioca; wine jelly; rice pudding; orange juice.

Avoid fried foods, meat of all kinds, fruit, vegetables with a heavy residue, salads, highly spiced foods and butter.

Q. F. "I am 20 years of age and suffering from a slight curvature of the spine and would like to know if there is anything I can do to remedy this, or if there is any known cure for it."

Answer—About five per cent of women have a slight curvature of the spine, sufficient to be called beyond normal. In most cases it needs no treatment and will give no trouble. In others it should be treated by exercise and orthopedic appliances.

MURDER MAKES A HERO
By ELLIOTT FILLION
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE
I THOUGHT the chief's rebuking words would silence Kaye, but they only seemed to infuriate her. If he had said to me that stern "I prefer to hear his story from his own lips," I wouldn't have dared speak again. But Kaye rushed into further angry speech.

"You can't ring Dave in on Mark's death," she cried. "Why don't you question the rest of them? Cary had a fight with Mark tonight. We heard them!"

I had not dreamed that to shield the man she loved, Kaye would attempt to incriminate her own cousin. Yet, looking at the matter from her point of view, I knew that I would do the same. Were Cary suspected, I would promptly tell all I knew, no matter where suspicion might fall.

"We already know about Mr. Essex's argument with your brother," replied the chief. "Who was with you when you heard it?"

"I was alone," Kaye tossed her head, defiantly.

"You were not!" roared the chief. "And I want no more lies from you. Who was with you?"

"Dave." Her voice wasn't any louder than a mouse's squeak.

"Why did you lie to me?" roared the chief as angrily as before.

"I didn't want you to know that Dave knew about it," she whimpered.

"Why?" insisted the chief. And at that Kaye seemed to realize that she had only involved herself and the man she loved in trouble she could have avoided by being frank.

"I'm sorry, Chief Crane," she said penitently. "I should have told you the truth in the beginning, but I was so scared for fear you'd think Dave did it when I know he didn't, that I said the first thing that came into my head."

"A bad thing to do, Kaye, but let's forget about it. To KNOW that David Otis didn't kill your brother, you must know who did. Who killed him?"

"I don't know," I said that way. Chief Crane really didn't. From Kaye's earnestness, I was sure she was speaking the truth. "I do know Dave. He wouldn't do a thing like that. I know he wouldn't."

"All right, now, what did you hear in the quarrel between Mark and Cary?"

Kaye shot a side glance at Cary. He wasn't looking at her. His eyes were fixed on space; he seemed not to be noticing what was going on around him.

"Not very much," she admitted sheepishly. "Dave and I were just going out when Cary and Nancy came downstairs. When we came back—we went down to the stable to look at my horse; he was a little lame yesterday—Cary and Mark were fighting about some papers he'd found in his father's chest. I heard Cary say he'd seen Horace Rand, and Mark said he ought to press all reflection of culpability be willing to marry Irene or do anything else to be certain that story—I don't know what he meant by that—was buried forever.

"They, Cary and Mark, were friendly enough at dinner time," she added honestly. "Then, about a quarter after nine, I went into the library to ask Nancy if she'd go down to the fishing village with me tomorrow morning, and Mark started telling me I couldn't marry Dave."

It didn't seem to me that they were getting anywhere going over and over the quarrels which, when all was said, were not so terrible after all. I think Captain Lancy was of the same mind, for he suddenly turned to Cary.

"I've been thinking about that letter you received, Mr. Essex. Did you keep it? The one threatening you with death," he added, Cary seeming bewildered at being thus so brusquely recalled from his own thoughts.

"I did."

"I'd like it, please. The laboratory may be able to give us information about it."

Cary pulled out his wallet, selected the letter and passed it to the detective. From his face I thought he was glad to be rid of it. Again a confused sound of voices came to my ears and, pompous as ever, Horace Rand, accompanied by Irene and Proctor, strutted in. If I had thought Chief Crane brutal to Kaye, I now had an opportunity to see what real police treatment was like.

The chief rose and me: them at the door. Curly he greeted them, and when Irene would have fluttered across the floor to Cary, he ordered her into a chair on the other side of the room. He separated Rand, from his son and, returning to his seat, yapped out:

"Mr. Rand, why did you shoot Mark Gould?"

I have seen a good many deflated balloons, but that was the first time I ever saw a human being look like one. Rand's mouth dropped open, his portly form seemed to shrivel until he occupied only a fraction of the chair he had so imposingly filled. Irene uttered a shriek, and Proctor looked from his father to the chief and back again with such a nit-witish expression upon his face that, serious as was the occasion, I almost laughed aloud.

"I—I—I—" stammered Rand. For once his flow of language failed him.

"Answer me!" roared the chief. I noticed that his eyes and those of the detective were not still an instant. From one Rand face to another they jumped and gradually their grim expressions softened.

I had followed their example, and I couldn't help but admire the Rands. If they were guilty, one or all, as I firmly believed was true, they certainly knew how to suppress all reflection of culpability while counterfeiting surprise, horror and innocence.

At the chief's resounding roar, Horace Rand leaped from his chair. But he didn't use dollar words; they were plain ten-centers.

"Whoever says I killed him, lies," he roared back, in a voice as wrathful as the chief's. "I didn't even know the boy was dead." His voice faltered on the last word.

"Sit down and answer my questions," yapped the chief. But Rand was not to be browbeaten further.

"What right have you to accuse me of such a crime?" he demanded. "And—"

"Sit down!" interposed the detective coldly, and that icy voice, with a sting in it, commanded more attention than Chief Crane's loudest roarings.

"We are investigating a murder, Mr. Rand," he went on, "and there are most suspicious circumstances implicating you. You will be wise to sit down and answer the questions we ask."

Rand almost fell backward into his chair and furiously mopped his face which from purplish-red was turning a pallid gray.

"Go ahead!" he muttered. "I'll tell you anything you want to know."

"Where were you at 10 o'clock when Mr. Essex went to your house expecting to find you there?"

"In Hyannis. I was delayed until too late to get home at 10. I tried to telephone, but, as usual, my daughter was using the line." He shot her a vindictive glance as he spoke. "I didn't leave Hyannis until five minutes past 10, and then I had a flat tire in Saugatuck."

"I suppose you realize that we shall check on everything you are saying." The detective might have been commenting on the weather, so bland was his voice.

"I hope to heaven you will," responded Rand. "You'll find I've told you the absolute truth."

"What time did you reach Rand House?" demanded the chief.

"I don't know." The maid told me that Cary had been there and gone, and I called her at once. You should know what time I called," he added accusingly.

"I do," returned the chief. "It was quarter past 11, one hour and 10 minutes," meaningly. "Quite a long time in which to drive only 20 miles."

"But I had to walk to the nearest house and telephone for a garageman to come and fix me up. I found my spare was flat."

"That was my fault," spoke up Proctor. "I had a flat this afternoon and intended to tell the chauffeur to have it fixed. I forgot about doing so, and when I thought of it again, dad had already gone to Hyannis."

"Give me the numbers of the place where you were so delayed and of the garage which fixed your tire. I'll check on your story right now."

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, January 22

A DAY of magnificent opportunities should be found among the current auguries. Such depend, however, on big ideas, well-worked plans, with creative genius and capacity to undertake important responsibilities "in a large way" — that will convince the major interests needful for their promotion, their worth and workability. Interviews, correspondence, conferences, convincing arguments with "higher ups" may prove the crux of these splendid propositions.

If It Is Your Birthday
Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a big year for demonstrating their versatility, creative ingenuity, capacity for important missions, responsibility, authority, etc., with those in the seats of the mighty. Big business, corporations, political or diplomatic bodies are to be approached with confidence in the plans, propositions, or products seeking promotion or working capital. This should be done with suavity and tact but not over-inflationary ideas. Major changes, of huge advantage, may materialize.

A child born on this day might be called a "giant in intellect," or power, with magnificent opportunity for demonstrating its splendid abilities, in almost any field of constructive thinking.

Today's Horoscope
The success of those who have birthdays today will be somewhat retarded during the next year. Monetary and domestic troubles threaten, them, but on the other hand, they will experience unexpected gains. They should look to Nature gives to every time and season some beauties of its own; and from morning to night, as from the cradle to the grave, is but a succession of changes so gentle and easy that we can scarcely mark their progress.

Hints on Etiquette
If you are the only boy in the family, don't expect every one else to wait on you. A chore or two will help you to develop a sense of responsibility and will make you much more popular in your home. Turn-about is fair play.

31 Members Take Part In Event Tuesday

Mrs. C. C. Watts, Mrs. George Hunsicker and Mrs. Lee Shaner named delegates from the Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, to the State meeting at the Netherlands Plaza, Cincinnati, March 9-12, during the meeting of the local chapter Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Frank J. Bennett, South Court Street. Alternates chosen included Mrs. James P. Yoffitt, Mrs. Helen Black Anderson, Mrs. Donald H. Watt, Mrs. William Cromley and Miss Florence Dunton.

Delegates were selected also for the National convention which will be in Washington, D. C., April 14-19, the two named being Mrs. Watts and Miss Marie L. Hamilton, with Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. William Mack as alternates.

Thirty-one members attended the session, Mrs. Lowell E. Burnelle and Mrs. O. K. Rodgers of Gouster, O., joining the group as guests.

Mrs. Watts, regent, was in the chair for the ritualistic opening of chapter and Salute to the Flag led by Mrs. Donald H. Watt.

It was mentioned also that search is being made for a copy of "Portraits and Biographical Records of Scioto Valley," by the Lewis Publishing Co., 1894. Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker reported a box and money ready to be sent to Ellis Island.

Mrs. Anderson presented an instructive paper on "Old Canal Days", mentioning the recent revival of interest in old canals as due to the work of conservation officers. She mentioned the fact that the old canals were passing away rapidly, two being lost in 1924, the Chesapeake and Ohio being destroyed by a heavy spring flood, the Morris, by drying up, and more than 4,400 miles of artificial waterways formerly in use, about 700 remain in operation.

She discussed the building of the Ohio canal which connected Lake Erie and the Ohio River, passing through Circleville, concluding with a delightful resume of its dedication.

Mrs. Burnelle, state chairman of Children of the American Revolution, talked in the interest of a society in Circleville, mentioning the idea of such organizations as not new, the first being founded in 1819. Two chapters are functioning in Columbus, according to Mrs. Burnelle. She mentioned the coming social activities

BRITAIN FEARS REICH ATTACK TO BE AT NIGHT

Parachutists Would Be Put In Strategic Centers, Say Londoners

CONTROL TO BE SOUGHT

Assault Against Important City May Be First Nazi Step

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Private advices from London today indicated the British fear that if and when Adolf Hitler attempts his invasion of England, the first attack will come at night.

The initial invasion move is expected to be made by parachute troops in the dead of night.

While strong forces of German bombers seek to divert attention by carrying out terrific blitz raids on important industrial areas, such as London, Birmingham, and Manchester, a fleet of German transport planes is expected to carry hundreds of parachute troops over southern England and unload them somewhere behind the front lines of the coastal defense forces.

Methods Of Landing

These shock troops of the German army equipped with hand grenades, machine-guns, and rapid firing small arms, may come floating noiselessly down through the darkness of the night. The transports unloading them probably would fly at a great height to give the impression they were bombing planes and their objective was further inland.

The first warning the British might have of the parachute invasion might be an attack on some important road junction or inland military post.

The British also consider it not only possible but probable that when the invasion actually is launched, an attempt will be made to land parachute troops on the outskirts of such cities as London for the purpose of a quick attack on the city. Such an attack would be directed at gaining control of Government buildings and demoralizing the population.

Aim Of Main Attack

However, it is believed the main parachute attack would be aimed at disrupting communications behind the front lines along the coast and generally attempting to disorganize the coastal defenses preparatory to an attempted landing by the main body of German troops from ships in the English Channel.

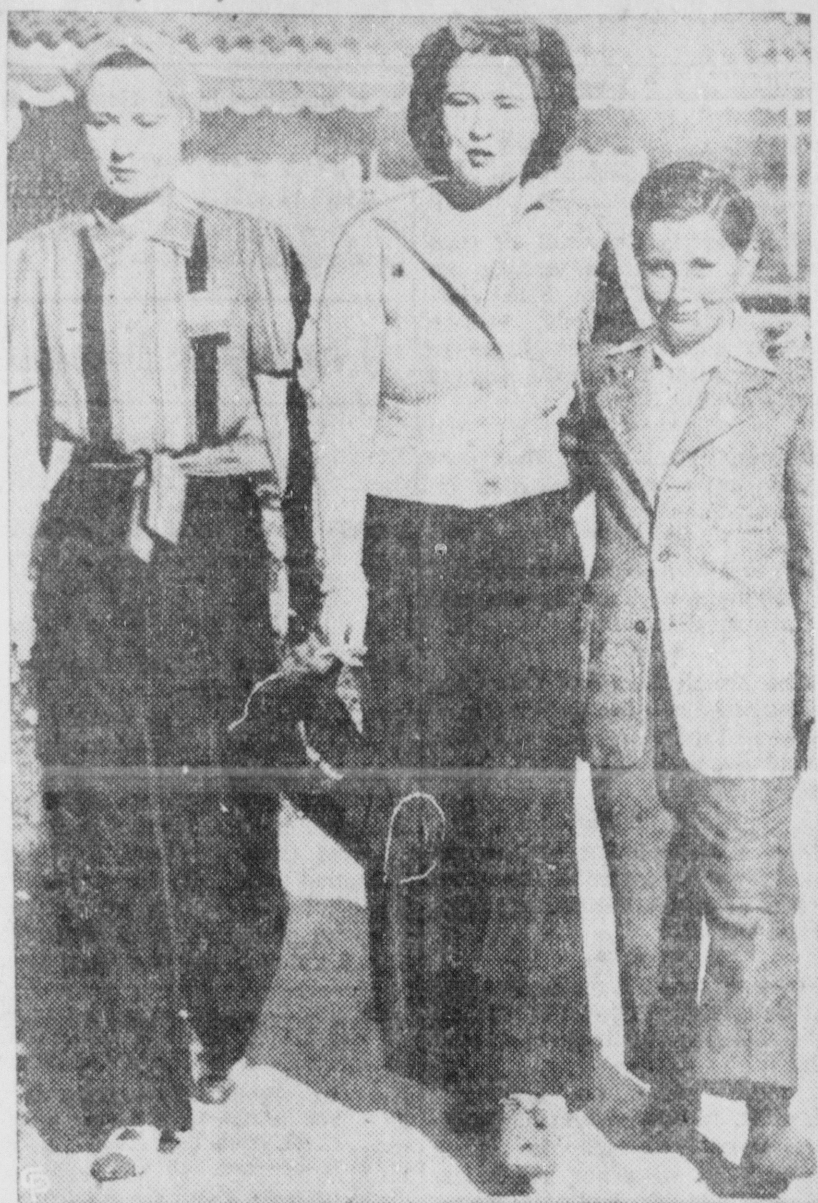

British military experts believe the invasion will be timed to land the parachute troops an hour or so before dawn and the main body of troops along the Channel coast just about dawn. This would give the Germans the benefit of light for the attack while helping to cloak in darkness the movement of their forces across the Channel.

Night operations also would serve to protect parachute troops from effective anti-aircraft fire and the British fighter planes, which could pick them off easily in daylight.

Darkness A Further Aid

Darkness also would help protect the movement of any Nazi

'SWEEPS' MONEY BREAKS UP HOME IN GOTHAM AREA

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—A $98,000 sweepstakes prize was blamed today for splitting up a family that had previously been happy although poor.

The difficulties arose from the $98,000 which August Ruggiere, a fighter known as Little Augie, won last April in the Irish Sweepstakes.

August was suing his father, Julius, for $7,000 he claimed his parent had wrongfully appropriated. At the same time, August and his lawyer were being sued by August's brother, Nick, for $49,000, half the sweepstakes prize, and $11,000 damages for a beating.

August charged he had merely put $49,000 in his brother's name to keep down the income taxes, but Brother Nick said he gave August $125 for a half share in the ticket.

armada across the Channel from the Royal Air Force and British coastal batteries, which would not be able to see the enemy ships as easily as in the daytime.

The British are confident, however, they will be able to repulse with disastrous losses to the enemy any invasion attempt, whether it comes by night or day.

Two million Tommies will be fighting on their own home ground, with the advantages all on their side. The British think that's sufficient to spell doom for any move by Hitler to repeat William the Conqueror's feat, regardless of the numerical superiority of the mighty German army.

floor and declared that as much as he admired Willkie, it would be a strategic mistake to put him in White's place. Douglas contended it would inject the Committee into partisan politics and he advised a less political choice.

This sound argument scored and the group dropped their idea in favor of Douglas' choice, ex-Senator Ernest W. Gibson of Vermont.

MRS. ROOSEVELT RECEIVES

A reception of a thousand people in a single day at the White House means big business, socially speaking. But on inauguration day, such a crowd poured through the doors of that mansion that all recent records were broken. The total was between six and seven thousand.

Result was that the Roosevelt children, who came to see Papa take the oath of office for the third time, got lost in the crowd, and thought they were in the Grand Central Terminal in New York. In fact, the crowd was so great that even Mrs. Roosevelt's brother, Hall Roosevelt, was elbowed out to quarters in an adjacent hotel.

The partying started on Sunday with a luncheon for 144 guests. That looks like plenty of people to have for lunch, but the figure pales into insignificance beside the number for Monday's luncheon. They were 1,600 strong. And this figure was dwarfed by the 4,600 who came to tea, making the total for that one day 6,200.

The house guests were lost, although they were no small crowd themselves. Major Hooker, former law partner of the President, got a room on the third floor, but other guests overflowed into three adjacent hotels.

The big job of receiving these thousands fell not on the President but on Mrs. Roosevelt. The President received only a few hun-chard Hoffman, 309 Columbia Avenue, Columbus.

tered, but she received and shook hands with them all.

CRISIS MARCH 15?

Secretaries Stimson and Knox did not go in to details when they told Congress they expected an international crisis in 60 or 90 days, but actually their War Department experts have gone so far as to fix the approximate date of March 15 for the crisis to break.

This estimate is based not only upon the already known fact that British shipping and its convoys soon must be reinforced, but also on secret negotiations now taking place to establish an Eastern Front, thus make Hitler fight two wars instead of one.

This was one of the big reasons for the pilgrimage of Colonel "Wild Bill" Donovan to North Africa, also for visits of officials from the American Embassy in France to Algiers. Their reports are extremely significant—asserting that Marshal Weygand, commander of the French forces in Africa, has become vigorously pro-British.

Furthermore, he has stated quite bluntly to American representatives that if he were sure of getting sufficient tanks, airplanes and ammunition, he would undertake a campaign against the Italians immediately.

MUNITIONS FROM U. S. A.

These supplies would come to Casablanca, on the coast of French Morocco, and what is more important, they would come from the United States.

Next move in this strategy, after crushing the Italians between British-French pincers, would be to transport French troops to Greece and further north in order to bolster the Yugoslavs along the German border. Conversations between the British and Yugoslavs already have progressed to the point where London believes that country is ready to resist Hitler. However, the Yugoslavs are most insistent on one thing—ample munitions.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

CREOMULSION for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

Furthermore, the Turks have moved three divisions from Anatolia, in Asiatic Turkey, to Thrace in European Turkey, in order to be ready for Hitler.

All of this is aimed toward the creation of a second war front—similar to the Russian front during the World War I—which would keep part of Hitler's troops busy and divert some of his attention from bombarding the British Isles. But it is all dependent upon receiving quick munitions from the United States. For Marshal Weygand will not move without munitions, and neither will Jugoslavia.

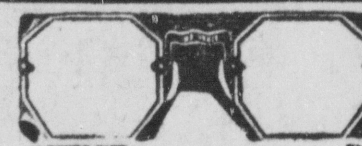

Moreover, this strategy is dependent upon increased aid from the British fleet in the Mediterean. But with several British warships put out of commission by Nazi dive bombers, the British are going to be forced to detach more ships from Atlantic duty and send them to the Mediterranean.

That brings up the final and probably most important point—Britain's hope that the American navy will partially take the place of damaged or transferred British convoys in the Atlantic, and convey merchant vessels with our own warships.

All of which experts figure will come to a head when the snow melts in the Balkans, or about March 15.

Scioto County Resident, 30,

Plow, Killer Confesses
To Prosecutor

PORTSMOUTH, Jan. 22—Mrs. Goldie Marie Pauley, 30, told Prosecutor Marvin Kelly today how she shot and killed her husband, Lee Pauley, 42-year-old WPA worker, as he lay in bed after threatening her and their five children.

Mrs. Pauley walked into Sheriff Earl Brandel's office late yesterday and told of firing the shotgun blast into the back of her husband at their isolated Candy Run farm home 15 miles north of Portsmouth. A 14-year-old daughter, Ollie, witnessed the shooting, she said.

Before the slaying, Kelly quoted Mrs. Pauley as saying that the husband threatened to kill her and the children and a neighbor's family, but went to sleep after she had hid the shotgun shells.

Mrs. Pauley, who was detained on a technical charge of investigation, said "my husband was extremely jealous and constantly beat me," according to the prosecutor. In a statement to Kelly, the 30-year-old woman said her husband last August had forced her to drag logs and pull a plow with Ollie.

After remaining awake all night, Mrs. Pauley said she decided to come to Portsmouth and report the shooting. A relative drove her to the city.

Besides Ollie, the children are Alice, 13; Rachel, 10; Edgar, 7, and Raymond 5.

NYA Shop Workers Produce Results

Production in mechanical shops and construction projects of the National Youth Administration for Ohio which prepares youth for possible defense industry employment rose 60 percent in the last quarter of 1940 over totals for the corresponding period of 1939, Leo B. Jacobs, NYA administrator, said today.

The production capacity of NYA's Ohio shops has been increased 750 percent, Jacobs added, and when metal fabrication and tool and machine shops now set up get into full operation, the youth program here can produce at least 18,750,000 items per month for public agencies of Ohio.

Such items will include, in machine shops; punches and dies; special metal jigs; small tools, punches, hammers, sledges, wrenches, hand drill parts, taps, dies, and other hand tools. In sheet metal units, production will cover; steel cabinets and lockers for many uses; metal boats, airport cones and hospital equipment; first-aid kit containers, machine guards, traffic signs, and barrack cots.

Forge and welding shop products will include; chisels, frames and other edged tools. Woodworking shops turn out furniture for all purposes, tool handles and conservation equipment. NYA's foundry projects process metal patterns for many uses; heavy-duty tools; castings for motors; heavy construction hardware. A ceramics shop produces dinnerware for NYA resident centers and other public institutions, tiles for buildings; kitchen ware. Sewing shops throughout Ohio make welfare and hospital garments and repair articles. These power sewing units produced 30,000 articles in the last quarter of 1939.

Provide Experience

Jacobs pointed out that NYA's shops and other production projects are set up to provide a maximum of experience as similar as possible to that of private industry, and to produce useful articles for public agencies who pay material costs. "We have no enrollees playing at machines," Jacobs said.

Jacobs added that 4,000 enrollees will be added to Ohio NYA rolls within 30 days. Youth between 18 and 25 years of age who are out of school and unemployed are eligible, as well as those who have graduated from high school and are 16.

He cited the example of Cleveland where personnel men called NYA for a shop shift one week after NYA's 5-story production experience center was opened with industrial equipment loaned by Cleveland plants.

Ohio NYA's production projects turned out 80,000 articles for public use between October 1 and December 30, 1940. The largest turnout was in sewing.

BODIES OF TWO FOUND, VICTIMS OF STOVE GAS

COLUMBUS, Jan. 22—Coroner Edward E. Smith was to return a verdict today in the deaths of Edward L. Morris, and Mrs. Agnes Ross, both 37, whose bodies were found in gas filled room of a northside rooming house. (Morris lived at 525 W. Fourth Avenue, and Mrs. Ross at 850 Dennison Avenue.)

The bodies were discovered by Delbert Dreilbelbis and Neal Lang, proprietors of the rooming house who had to crawl out on a roof and through a window to gain entrance to the room.

Coroner Smith said both died of monoxide gas. A small gas stove was turned on full force with the flames leaping out of the top burners, Dreilbelbis said.

Mrs. Dreilbelbis said the pair had rented the room about 1 a. m. yesterday. The bodies were not discovered until late yesterday.

Yes, you'll see plenty of action by the Servel Electrolux gas refrigerator at the 1941 Gasco Food Institute. With its assistance, dish after dish like those delicious delicacies pictured here, will be prepared. It safely guards meats and vegetables used at the Institute, too. Yet, it never makes a sound during the entire program because it freezes without moving parts to wear or make noise.

Save With Silence In Your Home

The silence of gas refrigeration means savings to you in three important ways. You save on upkeep because there are no moving parts in the freezing system of a gas refrigerator to wear out or require costly repairs. You can save on food costs because the constant cold of gas refrigeration keeps foods fresher for longer periods of time. And, you save on operating expense because a tiny gas flame does all the work at a cost of less than 2 cents a day. These savings make it possible for you to install a new Servel Electrolux gas refrigerator in your kitchen now and pay for it out of the savings it will make for you. See the new Servel Electrolux models now.

GIANTS GETTING WORSE ALL TIME; STARS SLIPPING

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Our current remnants of the great and noble New York Giants of other days face the approaching baseball season with tribulations piling higher day by day. Announcement that Morris Aronovich probably will be swept away by the draft early in the season is merely another incident, and perhaps not an important one, inasmuch as he was a 250-bitter with Philadelphia and Cincinnati last season. Outfielders are supposed to do a little better.

However, the fact remains that the Giants' seeming un-building program which has been going on for the last couple of seasons, is being given a little extra push by incidents over which the club has no control. There was the beaming of Billy Jurgas last season, the slight bump of Hank Danning, and the encroachment of old age among some comparatively young fellows to hasten the demise of the club's aspirations, if any.

It could be that next season is many weeks old, the Giants will be looking around hurriedly for an Aronovich, or just anybody who can get out there on the picket line and keep moving for nine innings. Mel Ott and Joe Moore have been going for a couple of years, and probably won't hit their peak again. In saying "probably" we merely wish to make sure we are not being too flat-footed about the thing.

The point is, the Giants have been skidding further and further toward the bottom, ever since the passing Carl Hubbell's greatness, and the situation is getting worse all the time.

BELLOISE'S CAMPAIGN HALTED BY JESSURUN

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Steve Belloise's campaign to set himself up again as a contender for the world's middleweight title suffered a setback today as a result of his defeat at the hands of Andre Jessurun last night on a split decision.

The referee gave Belloise the eight-round slugfest, but the two judges voted for Jessurun. Belloise weighed 151½; Jessurun 152½.

In this connection, an authoritative German commentator recently forecast Italian abandonment of all Cyrenaica, pointing out that the Tripolitanian border furnishes a natural defense line.

(Up to the present at least, General Weygand is believed to have opposed outright French military aid to Germany and Italy and to have stood firm against any diversion of the French fleet or naval bases to axis use.)

The Germans, according to opinion in Vichy, are becoming gravely concerned over Italy's increasingly difficult position in North Africa.

171 REMAIN OUT OF CIRCLEVILLE SCHOOL CLASSES

Influenza in the Pickaway County vicinity continued on the decline Wednesday, with most of the schools reporting absences on the down-grade.

The absentee list in Circleville schools dropped from 234 Tuesday to 171 Wednesday. Frank Fischer, superintendent of schools, announced.

Most county schools also reported conditions improved Wednesday, with the exception of Monroe Township, whose board Tuesday night decided to keep the school closed for the rest of the week.

Washington Township, the only other school in the county which remained closed the first of the week, will reopen Thursday.

Attendance at Salt Creek Township, the first school in the county to close because of the epidemic, was reported almost normal Wednesday.

OBSERVERS SAY WANER TO JOIN BROOKLYN CLUB

By Sid Mercer
NEW YORK, Jan. 22—When the Dodgers assemble in Havana next month, it is very likely that Paul Waner, elder of the poison brothers, will be among them.

Larry MacPhail is in California today and therefore unavailable for comment, but information from Miami reveals that negotiations have been going forward several weeks through Leo Durocher.

Durocher and Joe Medwick are vacationing in the Florida resort, along with Charley Dressen, and Waner has been completing a daily golf foursome for them.

Leo is supposed to be strongly advocating the acquisition of the veteran, pointing out that right field is the one open place in the Dodger batting order. The high-few weeks because I believe so strongly that the survival of England is the best assurance we have for keeping the United States out of the war. I think we should support the fighting men of England for they can stop the onslaught of Hitlerism. I feel we must keep Hitler away from these shores and I'm going over myself to see for myself what it's all about."

He ended with, "God bless you all."

John Cowles, newspaper publisher, and Landon K. Thorne, banker, two of his friends, accompanied him on the voyage. He expects to return February 10.

The tin hat was the subject of a little joshing from reporters as he emerged from his Fifth Avenue home with Mrs. Willkie and two friends, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Atwood, at 7:25 a. m. He was swinging the helmet, a khaki-colored affair, by its chin strap.

"What's that far?" he was asked.

"Oh, just in case."

"Is it a relic of your war days?"

"No, I was told it would be quite difficult to get one in London so a friend sent it to me."

"Are you worried?"

He laughed. "Of course not."

He was dressed in a blue suit, blue shirt, dark blue tie, dark topcoat, gray hat, black shoes and socks and had a red muffler dangling about his neck. Mrs. Willkie said gently.

"Fix the muffler."

He did.

100 To 1 For Decision

The party arrived by car at La Guardia Field before 8 a. m., there, Willkie told of thousands of letters and telegrams received from Republicans praising his stand for the lend-lease bill. The ratio, he asserted, was to or 100-1 in favor of his action. One telegram, from Mayor John W. Kapp of Springfield, Ill., came to him at the field.

"Have you reserved your air raid shelter?" he was asked.

He grinned. "I've known bombing before."

In a serious vein, he asserted:

"I am not going to England in an official capacity. I'm going as Wendell Willkie, private citizen, to see and hear. I have no plans to speak there formally. I'll undoubtedly talk to some of the British leaders."

He already has an invitation to see Prime Minister Churchill. He also wants to talk with Ernest Bevin, minister of labor.

"I told Secretary of State Hull I would have a talk with him when I return about what I had observed and learned. I have no plans for seeing the President. I will undoubtedly have things to say about what I learn in England, but there are no definite plans for speaking when I get back."

He was asked what Mrs. Willkie thought of the trip.

"She's a good sport," he said.

"I wish I were going myself," she added. "I'd like to be going with him."

Captain Haakon G. Gulbransen was in command of the clipper, which carried 22 passengers. Nine of them, including the Willkie party, were bound for Lisbon, where they will change to a British plane and arrive in London within 48 hours.

ly regarded Pete Reiser is tentatively slated to play there, but he has yet to prove that he is a .300 hitter, or can fill the No. 3 spot in the Brooklyn batting order.

Tobruk had fallen before the terrific British assault.)

Outer Barricades Smashed

The break-through of the powerful outer defenses of Tobruk was accomplished after a single day's assault, although this had been preceded by many days of siege and investment and heavy artillery and aerial bombardment.

Complete occupation of Tobruk by the British was regarded in Cairo as a foregone conclusion, since many of the Fascist defenders already were in the hands of the attacking mechanized units.

An official communique said that shortly after noon yesterday imperial British troops, supported by the navy and RAF, penetrated both the outer and inner defenses of Tobruk to a depth of five miles on a broad front and that the advance was continuing.

Many prisoners were taken, the announcement said, adding that these included one general.

The Italian cruiser San Giorgio in Tobruk Harbor was in flames, as were ammunition dumps and stores of other military supplies.

(In London a Reuters news agency report said there were indications that German troops soon may be fighting beside the Italians in Africa as a result of the recent meeting between Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini.)

(According to this report, a Stefani (Italian) news agency dispatch stated:

"Italy and Germany are acting in perfect solidarity against the same enemy, and this solidarity is destined to develop on all fronts.

Attention Diverted

The sudden assault was launched against Tobruk after attention had been diverted from the Libyan battle zone by the British advances in Eritrea against fleeing Italian forces following capture of the border stronghold of Kassala.

INFATUATED WOMAN KILLS LOVER; OWN LIFE SAVED

BOSTON, Jan. 22—Weeping and shrieking hysterically, Mrs. Ruth Steadman, 26, wife of a Pittsburgh insurance executive, was kept at City Hospital today while police sought a warrant charging her with the murder of the married man with whom she was hopelessly infatuated.

A tragic figure, the blonde Harvard University secretary intermittently cried for the man she is accused of killing with a "death cocktail" and at intervals expressed hope that her effort to take her own life would be ultimately successful. At times, she wept with remorse.

She told police a hopeless seven months infatuation with Robert G. Emery, 25, a real estate broker, of South Natick and the father of two children, culminated in the tragedy.

"I couldn't live without him," she cried to police.

Everywhere, it was stated, the Romanian army was seizing power, throwing out the Iron Guardists who were described as "no longer masters of the situation."

All policemen who were members of the Iron Guard were dismissed from the Bucharest police force, but they abandoned their jobs only after a bitter struggle with troops. Tanks finally were brought into action against them.

Likewise Iron Guard students employed by the Bucharest prefecture were dismissed from their jobs, but refused to quit.

They barricaded themselves in the prefecture offices and defied troops sent to force them to surrender.

Thousands of other students, police and soldiers were dispatched to dislodge the beleaguered students, but some reports said the barricaded youths were still holding out against all comers.

SOCIALIST RAPS LEASE-LEND ACT

Ambassador to England Joseph P. Kennedy.

Kennedy, while declaring that all possible aid should be given Britain and that Mr. Roosevelt must have vast power, opposed legislation which might involve the nation in war and urged congress not to abdicate in an emergency.

Kennedy opposed conveying of British supply ships by the American navy. Later, President Roosevelt declared that there is no intention of turning the navy into a convoy, or to transfer additional destroyers to the British. Suggestions that British or neutral ships be conveyed to some relay point half way across the Atlantic and the cargoes transferred to English boats, are in the Mother Hubbard class, he said.

The President was represented to be of the opinion that conveying may result in some shooting which would bring the U. S. close to war and the last thing the administration has in mind is to do anything that might start the shooting.

BRICKER FIXES JANUARY 25 AS EVENT IN OHIO

Children's Day On "March Of Dimes" Program
Scheduled

COMMUNITIES ARE BUSY

Money To Be Used Against Infantile Paralysis
In Nation

COLUMBUS, Jan. 22—Spurred to increased activity by the issuance of an official proclamation of Governor Bricker himself, local committees carrying on the campaign against infantile paralysis throughout Ohio are making plans to break all records on Saturday, January 25th, which has been designated as "Children's Day" in the 1941 March of Dimes for the anti-polio fight.

Dr. J. H. J. Upham of Ohio State College of Medicine, honorary state chairman of the anti-polio committee, and State Campaign Director J. E. Trautman have received reports from many counties which indicate that all records should be smashed by the time business closes on Saturday night. Many communities are planning special features to call attention to the "Children's Day" drive for dimes wherewith to finance the continuing fight against infantile paralysis.

Text of Proclamation

Governor Bricker's proclamation declared:

"Whereas, a national campaign is under way to raise funds to fight infantile paralysis, and Whereas, this is a humanitarian campaign in which every citizen should join, and Whereas the period of January 15th to January 30th has been set aside for the March of Dimes, and Whereas children have such a vital stake in the success of the campaign, it is fitting that one day be specially designated as Children's Day; Now, therefore, I, John W. Bricker, Governor of Ohio, do hereby proclaim January 25th as Children's Day in the March of Dimes Campaign, and urge all citizens to contribute liberally in the fight against infantile paralysis.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great Seal of the State of Ohio to be affixed at Columbus, this eighteenth day of January in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty-one."

The Proclamation, signed by the Governor, was countersigned by the new Secretary of State, John E. Sweeney. The latter is also actively interested in the 1941 campaign to expand our National Defense Against Infantile Paralysis, as are other national, state and county officials, many of whom are personally identified with anti-polio campaign committees throughout the State and Nation.

Ohio Leading Again

Reports from various Ohio communities lead national and state leaders in the campaign, which ends with the Celebration of the President's Birthday two weeks hence, to predict that Ohio again top all other states in the final count of funds collected. This State led the Nation in 1940 and is expected to equal or surpass last year's record.

LUTHERAN LEADERS TO TALK OF CHURCH TASKS

COLUMBUS, Jan. 22—Problems and responsibilities of the Lutheran Church in the present world crisis were to be discussed today by leaders of seven groups in Columbus to attend the 23rd annual meeting of the National Lutheran Council.

Among proposed projects to be discussed are the establishment of a special intersynodical office to serve Lutheran men in the army, assistance to war-orphaned missions and international broadcasts. The council is the common agency for seven participating commissions with a total membership in excess of 3,500,000. Dr. Ralph H. Long is executive director of the council.

We Have Improved Our Dairy Plant For Your Protection

Read Below What We Have Done:—

WITHIN the last few months our entire plant has been remodeled and re-equipped.

We have installed new Pasteurizers that are the most up-to-date kinds that money can buy. They are made of stainless steel and are glass lined. Sanitary piping of stainless steel has been installed throughout the plant.

Our dairy now meets not only State inspection, but Federal inspection as well, and Federal inspection of dairies is very rigid.

Only minor improvements are yet to be made and then we will have our Grand Opening to the public; but now, or at any time, anyone who wishes may visit our plant. We always welcome visitors.

When you see our new plant you will decide for yourself from whom you want to purchase your milk.

For added protection of our customers we are now using the new sanitary COVER KAP, the cap that covers the entire top of your milk bottle.

We Urge You To Try Circle City COTTAGE CHEESE

It is made in a new stainless steel vat, and we think you'll say it is the best Cottage Cheese you ever tasted. Ask for it at your grocers.

NEWARK OUTFIT INVADERS C. A. C. BIG INCREASE BY THURSDAY NIGHT INDIAN BOSSES

The Owens-Corning team of Newark, comprised of several all-state athletes, comes, to Circleville Thursday evening to play the C. A. C.-Stone's Grill quintet on the C. A. C. boards. The Newark crew holds victories over many of Ohio's outstanding teams.

On the squad are Hupp of Muskingum, Buddy Mercer, star of the state championship Newark team of a couple of years ago; Myers, Muskingum; Peyton, Marietta; Foley, Ohio U., and Hartshorn, Geneva College, Pa.

The team to date has won 11 games and dropped one. Marysville Moose, Barberton, Lancaster, Zanesville, Mount Vernon and Mansfield semi-pro aggregations are included among their victims.

The C. A. C. has added Carl Gulick of Commercial Point and Art Kaiser of Walnut Township to strengthen its quintet, the team suffering all year from lack of reserve strength.

Two preliminaries will be scheduled for Thursday evening, the C. A. C. reserves to meet at 7:15, two Boy Scout troops opening festivities at 6:30.

The C. A. C. will invade Kenton next Sunday afternoon.

ZIVIC TO REST AWHILE; SMALL BONE FRACTURED

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 22—Fritz Zivic, world's welterweight champion, planned a Florida vacation today as the treatment for cuts and the small hand fracture he suffered in successfully defending his title against Henry Armstrong last Friday.

N. and W. Spends $200,000 for New Scales In City

Installation Being Conducted On Tracks At Mound Street; Mechanism Is Explained

A $200,000 track scales is being installed by the Norfolk and Western Railroad on its tracks near Mound Street.

The project, which has been under construction for nearly a month, will be completed by April 1, railway officials believe, and will double the tonnage which can be weighed at any one time.

The new scales are 73 feet long and will weigh 200 tons at a time, the old 48-foot scales weighing only 100 ton. Heavy loads of sand and gravel passing over the Circleville tracks necessitate the added equipment, railway officials maintain.

2,691 OHIO MEN TO BE CALLED IN NEXT DRAFT

COLUMBUS, Jan. 22 — Ohio will be called on to furnish 2,691 men for the third draft under the National Selective Service act, the war department notified state officials today.

Of the total, 1,000 will be Negroes, officials said. Induction of white draftees under the third call will begin February 10 and continue for three days, while for the Negroes it will begin on February 17 and end on the 21st.

Meanwhile, State Selective Service Director Gilson D. Light expressed concern over the rate of rejections of the first selectees appearing at the Cleveland induction station. Rejection for physical deficiencies amounted to 13 percent instead of the expected seven percent, Light said.
